

December 4, 2018

Hello,

In case you have not heard, most of the progress reports went home yesterday. Please review your student's progress report and the teacher comments. There is still a short time left in the semester to make improvements. Semester exams start this Friday, December 7th and continue into the next week. Classes will continue until Friday, December 21st. The last week of classes is an important time for students to complete exam corrections, projects, benchmarks, and get a start on next semester's material.

Thank you once again for entrusting your children with us. While it is a very busy time of the school year, it is rewarding to be able to see some of the seeds that have been planted root and grow. I am very proud of each student for their large and small accomplishments this semester and cannot wait to see how far they can grow next!

Sincerely,

Ms. Garza
